Respected Hiring Manager,

I am writing to apply to the Software Development Engineer role, as I am certain that my skill set and past experience makes me an ideal candidate and hire for this position. As a Computer Science graduate student at Northeastern University, with 3 years of work experience in software and cloud, including a co-op at Amazon Robotics and 3 years of work experience at KPMG India, I believe my selection would mutually benefit both of us, as I can use my knowledge and skills to add on to your already talented team and contribute impactfully, while your esteemed company will serve as the healthy workplace with unlimited opportunities that I am in pursuit of.

I have worked with all the technologies mentioned in your job description, both in my personal projects as well as during industry experience, and I can fulfil all the duties as expected, as well as add any effort that may be needed over and above, to ensure that every deliverable I present is up to your standards and passes your scrutiny. So I request you to give me an opportunity to interact with you further so I can prove my worth and earn the chance to work for you.

Regards,

Ananya Asthana
